Features This walk starts with a City Centre tour of the University Colleges before you head out to Grantchester on a walk beside the River Cam. You stop for tea at the famous Orchard tearooms, and then you have a choice of a return walk to Cambridge, either via Trumpington or back beside the River Cam. Gardeners amongst you may like to visit the Cambridge University Botanic Gardens at walk end before taking the short walk which remains to Cambridge Railway Station.

Footwear: as most of this walk is on footpaths and paved paths you may prefer to wear stout walking shoes or well cushioned trainers instead of walking boots

Walk Options After reaching Grantchester, there are 2 endings. Option A is to return back the same way along the River Cam, option B), which involves a mile of road walking, is via Trumpington

History

Perhaps Friends of the Earth should employ poets. Writing a famous poem must be as effective a way as any of ensuring that a place is preserved forever. Rupert Brooke's poem The Old Vicarage – he had rooms as a student at the Orchard, and later at the Old Vicarage, Grantchester – was written in a mood of nostalgia in a Berlin café, in May 1912. The poem celebrates not only Grantchester and the river (“Laughs the immortal river still/Under the mill, under the mill?”), but the surrounding countryside (“And sunset still a golden sea /From Haslingfield to Madingley”). Augustus John camped in Grantchester meadows with, as Keynes put it, his “two wives and ten naked children”; Brooke and Virginia Woolf (who dubbed his friends the “Neo-Pagans”) swam naked by moonlight; EM Foster visited the Orchard; Wittgenstein would come there by canoe; AN Whitehead and Bertrand Russell worked on their Principia Mathematica at the Mill House, next to the Old Vicarage. As for the church clock (“Oh! Yet /Stands the Church clock at ten to three? / And is there honey for tea?”), in Brooke's first draft at half past three (the actual time it was stuck at for most of 1911).

The oldest surviving building in Cambridge is St Bene't's Church, which has a Saxon tower. Cambridge University was founded in the early thirteenth century by students and academics fleeing riots in Oxford, where the townsfolk felt imposed on by the academics. Within a couple of centuries, the university dominated the Cambridge townsfolk too: in 1440 Henry VI had a large part of medieval Cambridge demolished to make way for King's College, intended for students from his new Eton school; in 1496 a twelfth-century nunnery became Jesus College; in 1542 a Benedictine hostel was transformed into Magdalene College; and in 1596 Trinity College was endowed by Henry VIII, with funds from the monasteries he had vandalised.

The Orchard Tea Rooms date from 1897, although the orchard's apple trees were planted eleven years earlier. Soon after opening the tearooms became a favourite “up-river” café of college students. In the tearooms early years the owners took in lodgers to supplement their income, one being Rupert Brooke. Today college students punt up to the Orchard for tea – or a champagne breakfast after May Balls. During Cambridge's Fringe Festival summer evening performances of Shakespeare are held at the Orchard.

Visit

Visiting Cambridge University Colleges

On arrival in the city centre you might like to purchase a guide of the colleges and a city centre map from one of the bookshops. Some of the colleges are open to the public although most charge an entrance fee – although often with free admission to evensong (a Church Service). You will not have time to visit many of the colleges, but if you want to visit just one of Cambridge's historic buildings, try King's College Chapel. Evensong is the time to visit the Chapel, if you get the opportunity. Colleges may well be closed to the public during exams, from late April to mid-June.

Cambridge University Botanic Gardens

The Gardens were established by one of Charles Darwin's teachers, John Henslow, Professor of Botany, and first opened in 1846. Today, the gardens extend to 40 acres with over 8,000 plant species. At the start of the 20th century Cambridge scientists pioneered work on plants at the Gardens and played a major part in the development of the branch of science known as genetics.

Opening times:

- April to September: 10am to 6pm
- February, March & October: 10am to 5pm
- January, November & December: 10am to 4pm

Entrance Fee (2023): £ 8.00 (including gift aid)

There is a garden café and garden shop within the grounds.

Travel Take the train nearest to 10 am from London King's Cross to Cambridge. There are also trains from Liverpool Street, but they take much longer.

Trains back from Cambridge run about twice an hour to King's Cross.

Lunch Take lunch at any one of the numerous pubs and cafes in the City Centre after you have completed your tour of the colleges.

Tea THE tea stop on this walk is The Orchard Tea Rooms (tel.01223-845788) in Grantchester. It is steeped in history and, although touristy, remains "real" and very popular with Cambridge and local residents as well as the many tourists who flock to it. Consequently, at weekends (particularly on Sundays) The Orchard is packed and you will have to queue to be served and wait for a table to become free under the orchard's apple trees. But be patient as the wait is worthwhile.

In 115 metres you pass South Green Road on your right. Keep ahead, now on an unmade road, with Skater's Meadow on your left (a small nature reserve).
30. In 100 metres you pass Pembroke College sports ground on your right. The way ahead now becomes a surfaced path, with a wooden fence on your left and a hedge on your right, with Grantchester Meadow over to your left.
31. In 135 metres go through a metal kissing gate, with a small cattle grid to its right. You now have a choice of surfaced path or path besides the River Cam. In the wet or after recent rain, take the surfaced path: in the dry, the path besides the river is recommended. To follow the river, bear left after going through the kissing gate, and reverse the directions between points 6B and 6A below, entering the Orchard's grounds at the end.

32. To follow the surfaced path: having gone through the kissing gate, take the surfaced path ahead, your direction 200 degrees. In 450 metres go through another metal kissing gate, with a small cattle grid to its right, and continue ahead on the surfaced path, your direction 205 degrees.

Coming out of the church, reverse your steps past the junction with the surfaced footpath, and in 40 metres, where the road swings right, keep ahead down a gravel path and into the garden of The Orchard, the de rigueur tea place.
37. After tea, you can either return to Cambridge via the River Cam (choosing the other path to the one you came on to Grantchester), or try a route via Trumpington: it involves a mile of road walking on busy roads at the beginning but then the route is over fields and beside a stream and is not devoid of interest.

38. Option A) Return via the River Cam

39. After tea in the Orchard's garden, it is worth your while to take a short detour to view the outside of the Old Vicarage, where Rupert Brooke used to lodge. Walk through the Orchard's car park (in a southerly direction) and pass the Rupert Brooke Museum buildings on your right, to exit the car park, back onto the main road, where you turn left. In 50 metres, the road swings to the right, and there is a footpath ahead between high walls. The Old Vicarage is the house on your left, with a post box in a wall. The property is now owned by Lord Jeffrey Archer and Lady Mary Archer. The large conservatory where Lord Archer wrote many of his novels is clearly visible. In the front garden of the house is a statue of Rupert Brooke in military uniform. Retrace your steps, through the Orchard's car park, to the entrance to the Orchard tearoom building.

40. [6A] [!] Here, on your right, is a low level sign "To the River". Go down this path, your direction 100 degrees, in 40 metres going through a metal kissing gate. Keep ahead over a field and in a further 100 metres go through another metal kissing gate, to the banks of the River Cam.
41. Your onward route is more or less to follow the River Cam to the outskirts of Cambridge but in more detail:
42. Bear left and in 80 metres go through a metal kissing gate. In a further 120 metres, go over a stream. In 110 metres go through a metal kissing gate No.19, and onwards, along the bank. In a further 200 metres, go through a metal kissing gate. In 80 metres go through a gate and over a wooden footbridge with wooden railings. In dry weather, follow the path to the right and along the banks of the River Cam: in the wet, take the tarmac path some 50 metres over to your left.
43. Continuing by the river, in 240 metres go over a wooden footbridge with wooden railings. In 130 metres go through a metal gate and over a wooden footbridge with wooden railings. In 150 metres go over another wooden footbridge with wooden railings, and in 55 metres another.
44. [6B] In 100 metres go over another wooden footbridge with wooden railings. The path now swings left and in 300 metres joins the upper (tarmac) path. Turn right, through a metal kissing gate to join the tarmac path, your direction 40 degrees .
45. In 200 metres, having passed Grantchester Meadow on your right, keep ahead along a badly maintained car road, your direction 65 degrees, with a car parking area on your left. In 100 metres your way becomes a tarmac road.
46. In 115 metres at a three-way road junction [!] ignore Marlowe Road on your left and turn down Eltisley Avenue (the middle junction), your direction 30 degrees. In 200 metres turn left to go northwards up Grantchester Street.
47. In 160 metres, you come to the junction with the A603.
48. Turn right at the junction with the A603, and head just south-of-east, on a surfaced path on the southern edge of Lammas Land, to cross a stream on a bridge after some 350 metres, and where a path joins you on your left, continue ahead.
49. [8] Continue ahead with a stream on your right. In 190 metres fork left, due east, with a wall on your left-hand side.
50. In 120 metres you come to the A10 ( Trumpington Road ) where you go left, your direction 350 degrees.
51. In 110 metres turn right on Bateman Street, due east. In 70 metres you pass the entrance to Cambridge University Botanic Gardens on your right-hand side. For the next 450 metres ignore all ways off.
52. You come to the A640 T-junction, where you turn right, your direction 155 degrees. In 55 metres, by the war memorial , fork left on Station Road your direction 105 degrees. Ignore all ways off and in 360 metres you come to Cambridge Railway Station.

53. Option B) Return via Trumpington

54. After tea, walk ahead through the Orchard's car park – in a southerly direction – and pass the Brooke Museum single storey buildings on your right. Go under a barrier and exit the car park back onto the road, where you turn left. In 50 metres, as the road swings right, keep ahead through wooden posts onto a signposted gravel footpath between high walls, your direction 100 degrees. The house on your left at this junction is The Old Vicarage. Note the statue in the front garden of Rupert Brooke in military uniform.
55. Go down the gravel footpath, which swings right and in 120 metres comes back out onto the road by Mill Pool. Turn left to cross a bridge and in 30 metres you cross another, smaller bridge. In 70 metres the road swings to the right and in a further 50 metres you go over a bridge with brick parapet walls over the River Cam.
56. In 120 metres you come to a public footpath sign on your right to Byron's Pool, a local beauty spot. Lord Byron was a pupil at Trinity College, Cambridge in 1805 and he used to enjoy an early morning dip on the river here by a weir. A detour of 400 metres takes you to the Pool, after which retrace your steps back to the road.
57. Back at the road, continue ahead. In 150 metres the road swings left, and in a further 50 metres, right. In 80 metres you pass St. Mary and St. Michael's Church, Trumpington on your right. Keep ahead on the road and in 100 metres, with a war memorial ahead, turn left on the main road. .
58. In 85 metres you pass the Green Man pub on your right and in 25 metres the former Coach & Horses pub on your left (now an oriental buffet restaurant). Cross a road junction and keep ahead on the pavement of this busy road, ignoring all ways off.
59. In 350 metres, at a road junction with traffic lights, turn right into Long Road. In 650 metres you pass Rutherford Road on your left. In a further 70 metres !! turn left off the road onto a footpath and head along the left-hand side of a grassy field, signposted to Brooklands Avenue, your direction 20 degrees, with Vicar's Brook over to your left.
60. In 300 metres the path swings left on a bridge over the brook, then right. Ignore a path to your left, and keep ahead, with the brook now on your right-hand side, your initial bearing 25 degrees. You now walk through a woodland section, with Clare College Sports Ground over to your right.
61. In 300 metres, at a path crossing, ignore the bridge on your right leading to the Sports Ground, and keep ahead. In 200 metres you cross a stream to the brook on a wooden footbridge with wooden railings, and keep ahead, the brook still on your right-hand side, now on a gravel path, your direction due north.

62. Keep ahead and ignore all ways off. In 350 metres you come to a large allotment site on your left. In 100 metres the path doglegs right then left with the brook. In a further 200 metres go up 5 concrete steps by the side of a bridge onto Brooklands Avenue.
63. Cross over Brooklands Avenue, slightly to your left, to go through metal posts and down 4 concrete steps, to continue on a path besides the brook, your direction 320 degrees, with the grounds of the University Botanic Gardens over to your right.
64. In 90 metres go through metal posts to come out onto the pavement of Trumpington Road. Keep ahead with the brook on your right and in 275 metres turn right into Bateman Street. The entrance kiosk to Cambridge University Botanic Gardens is at this road junction on your right-hand side.
65. Walk down Bateman Street and for the next 450 metres ignore all ways off. You now come to the A640 T-junction, where you turn right, your direction 155 degrees. In 55 metres, by the war memorial, fork left on Station Road your direction 105 degrees. Ignore all ways off and in 360 metres you come to Cambridge Railway Station
