OS Explorer Map: 193 (Luton & Stevenage)

Walk Notes:

This Central Bedfordshire walk just north of the easterly end of the Chilterns initially follows the tranquil Flit River along the shady wooded fringes of Flitwick Moor, one of the most important wetland sites in the south east of England, and then veers away from the river through a couple of quiet villages, en route passing the Grade I-listed De Grey Mausoleum in Flitton and the also Grade I-listed Wrest House and Gardens in Silsoe. This is followed by a longer stretch through rolling fields with views to the Greensand Ridge. After crossing the Flit near Clophill the walk leads up the Greensand Ridge, descending for lunch back into Clophill. After lunch it's back on to the ridge for a long stretch through and along Maulden Wood, at times with far views south to the Chiltern Hills. The highlight of the return route from Maulden to Flitwick is the passage through Flitton and Flitwick Moors, including a stretch along a narrow path through the very heart of Flitwick Moor.

A much shorter option, with less ascent as well, is described (rated 1 out of 10).

Walk Options:

A very short out-and-back to the De Grey Mausoleum and Wrest Park is possible; pubs in Silsoe and Flitton – or the Café in Wrest Park – would provide nourishment (12.3 km/7.7 mi).

A pre-lunch shortcut cuts 7.2 km (4.4 mi) and 120m of ascent/descent and has a rating of 1/10.

The two lunch options in Clophill are a mere 650m apart, one on the Main Walk route, the other on the Shortcut. For the continuation from Clophill, there is no material difference in length between using the Main Route or the Shortcut. The route between them is described.

Several bus lines connect Clophill to Flitwick, Bedford or Luton Stations (both on the same line as Flitwick).

Bus Lines 200 and FL1, 4, 5 and 10 also connect Flitton (3.2 km into the walk) and Maulden (6.1 km from the end) to Flitwick (Mon-Sat).

Notes:

Flitwick

Flitwick, pronounced 'flittick', is a small town and civil parish in Central Bedfordshire, England. It is mentioned in the Domesday Book as "a hamlet on the River Flitt". Flitwick is famous for its Flitwick Manor House, currently used as a hotel. There is also physical evidence of a Norman era motte-and-bailey castle site, locally known as "The Mount".

Two Moors Heritage Trail

A way-marked 8 km (5 mi) walk along the Flit River as well as through the remaining parts of Flitton and Flitwick Moors, part of what was once a much larger wet moorland, long used for peat extraction.

The Flit River

The River Flit flows through Flitwick, then past Greenfield and Flitton and through Clophill, Chicksands, and Shefford, before meeting the River Ivel at Langford. Its name is not ancient, but rather a back formation from Flitton (other sources though attribute the name to Anglo-Saxon 'Fleot'; meaning fast flowing stream as in the now hidden river Fleet in London, giving its name to Fleet Street).

Flitwick Moor Nature Reserve

Now a Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) and one of the most important wetland sites in the south east of England, it is managed by the Wildlife Trust who owns the majority of it. It has formed where the Greensand Ridge lies close under the clay and chalk, allowing water in the underlying aquifer to come to the surface in a series of chalybeate springs (mineral spring waters containing salts of iron, which give the water its reddish colour). Deep deposits of peat built up here during thousands of years of growth of reeds and sedges, which died and fell into the relatively oxygen poor mud and water where they did not fully decay. The outcome was a series of "mires" along the river Flit. Flitwick Moor, the largest valley mire in Bedfordshire, is the sole survivor of these.

The whole of the Flit Valley from Westoning to Shefford would have been largely peat bog 200 years ago. The peat deposits are under 2,000 years old however, as Roman finds in the area are from below the peat layer. Peat was later dug from the moor for industrial use as a filter for coal gas. The wagons carrying the peat ran on movable rails and the peat was then taken to gas depots in towns to the north. This only stopped with the discovery of North Sea gas.

The moor was at one time famous for its water: Flitwick Water, which between the 1890's and 1950's was bottled and sold as an iron rich blood tonic. The moor is now exceptionally important for its mosses with over 130 species of bryophytes (mosses and liverworts) – more than Wicken Fen in Cambridgeshire which is four times its size. It is also nationally important for its fungi with over 500 recorded species – again more than Wicken Fen. You can also see Cotton Grass, more usually seen on upland peat bogs, and in late spring some areas are carpeted with Golden Saxifrage.

St. John the Baptist Church, Flitton

The church dates from the 15th century, but there was a church on the site in 1261, and Flitton is mentioned in the Domesday Book, spelt 'Flictham'. It is built from local sandstone, which does not weather well, making it costly to maintain. It was paid for by Edmund Lord Grey of Ruthin, Earl of Kent, who lived at Wrest Park, Silsoe.

De Grey Mausoleum

Among the largest sepulchral chapels attached to any English church, this cruciform mausoleum houses a remarkable sequence of 17 sculpted and effigied monuments, spanning nearly two and a half centuries (1614-1859), to the De Grey family of Wrest Park. It is built of brick, whitewashed in the late 19th century, topped by a parapet to match the Gothic style of the earlier medieval church and a Grade I listed building now in the guardianship of English Heritage.

The mausoleum owes its origins to the 'little Chappell or buryall place' added to the church of St. John the Baptist in Flitton by Henry Grey, the sixth Earl of Kent, in around 1605 in accordance with his will as a final resting place for his family and descendants. He had inherited an impoverished title, as a previous Earl had squandered most of the family fortune through lavish living and gambling, but carefully rebuilt the family finances. His will stipulated that his memorial should not only celebrate his achievements in life, but act as a reminder to future generations to mind their money!

This started the accumulation of one of the greatest collections of family funerary monuments in England. The church itself had been built by the family one hundred and fifty years earlier.

Their monuments clearly show changing attitudes towards death and bereavement from the 17th century to the Victorian period as well as changing styles of funerary architecture. The De Grey family members were not actually buried within their tombs, but instead in vaults beneath the stone floor of the mausoleum.

Open on selected days during summer, call Wrest Park for information: 01525 – 860 000.

Wrest Park

...comprises Wrest House, a Grade I listed country house, and Wrest Park Gardens, also Grade I listed, formal gardens surrounding the mansion. It is now managed by English Heritage.

The present house was built in 1834-39, to designs by its owner Thomas de Grey, 2nd Earl de Grey, an amateur architect and the first president of the Royal Institute of British Architects, who was inspired by buildings he had seen on trips to Paris and based his house on designs published in French architectural books. Wrest has some of the earliest Rococo Revival interiors in England. Reception rooms in the house are open to the public.

Wrest Park has an early 18th century garden, spread over 92 acres, which was probably originally laid out by George London and Henry Wise for Henry Grey, 1st Duke of Kent, then modified by Lancelot "Capability" Brown in a more informal landscape style. The park is divided by a wide gravel central walk, continued as a long canal that leads to a Baroque style pavilion designed by Thomas Archer and completed in 1711. Boundary canals were altered to take the more natural shape by Capability Brown who worked there 1758-60, and who also ringed the central formal area with a canal and woodland. During the 18th and 19th centuries, the Bath House, an orangery and marble fountains were added.

Greensand Ridge

The ridge of Greensand is a distinctive feature that rises markedly from its surrounding clay vales through Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire. It is an area of gently rolling hills and small valleys, heavily wooded in parts. In many places it has been planted with conifers, but there are still areas of important habitats such as heathland, acid grassland and ancient woodland remaining. Sandstone from the ridge has been used locally for building for hundreds of years, giving the towns and villages of the area their distinctive appearance. Extraction of the sands has led to a large network of quarries in the area, which is cut through by the valleys of the rivers Flit and Ouzel.

Cainhoe Castle, Clophill

A Norman motte-and-triple-bailey castle, possibly built on the site of an Anglo-Saxon settlement, by Nigel d'Albini, a Norman knight, whose family is known for having been deeply involved in the crusades. The family governed most of Bedfordshire from here. It is nowadays a Scheduled Ancient Monument also comprising an associated moated site, fishponds and a field system. The remaining earthworks of the castle are still clearly visible. The castle and the small village that had built up around it were occupied until the time of the Black Death (1348), when all the inhabitants died of the disease.

Clophill Eco Lodges

The lodges are community-funded and -built and intended to provide overnight accommodation for walkers, artists and general visitors to the area, residential courses as well as being a group space for heritage, eco and craft activities. There is an on-site warden to ensure the long term maintenance and preservation of the facilities, as well as supporting the activities which take place there. <https://www.clophillecolodges.co.uk/>

Old St Mary's Church, Clophill

St. Mary's is now picturesquely ruined and a designated Ancient Monument, but the remains still stand proud in its hilltop location above the village on the Greensand Ridge, providing for commanding views to the east and south from the ruined tower. It was eventually replaced by a new church down in the village and is now used as a mortuary chapel. The churchyard possessed the unenviable reputation of being a haunt of body snatchers, and many human bones have been dug up in the fields of nearby Brickwall Farm. It also attracted some interest during times of occult revival and was the scene of a couple of particularly grisly black magic ritual during the 1960s.

The tower is occasionally open for ticketed tours, with all proceeds going towards the communal Eco Lodges project. To book: <https://www.clophillecolodges.co.uk/tower-tours>

Greensand Ridge Walk

A linear way-marked 66 km (41 mi) walk, following the outcrop of the Cretaceous (142-65 million years ago) Lower Greensand through Bedfordshire, starting at Leighton Buzzard, passing Woburn Abbey and Ampthill Park (where it connects with the John Bunyan Trail) and finishing at Gamlingay on the border with Cambridgeshire.

Ailesbury Mausoleum & Crypt

The impressive octagonal mausoleum and crypt were built in the 17th Century by Thomas, Earl of Elgin, in memory of his second wife Diana, daughter of the Earl of Stamford.

Mausoleum and crypt are occasionally open to visitors during the summer months.

WALK DIRECTIONS

Alight from the train in Flitwick Station (usually on platform 2), and follow Way Out signs up some steps and down to and through the station building and follow a pavement up to road level and turn hard left along Steppingley Road to a roundabout. Bear left to cross the railway bridge. At the far end, cross another roundabout to the half right and continue along King's Road, to the left of a War Memorial (100°). In 580m continue in the same direction at a four-way junction along Greenfield Road. In 100m pass Flitwick Mill House on the right and cross the mill stream. In 15m turn left into a meadow through a metal kissing gate with a Greensand Country and Flit Valley Walk metal signpost and a Two Moors Heritage Trail marker. You follow a meandering path with the millstream on your left. Pass a couple of footpath marker posts along the way and enter woods with The Flit River on the right. In 90m pass an information board about Flitwick Moor Nature Reserve on the left.

In 360m – by a wooden bench on the left and a marker post on the right – ignore a footpath turning left. In 320m continue in the same direction at a three-way footpath junction by a concrete bridge on the right. In 160m turn left through a wooden kissing gate frame and follow a barbed wire fence on the right with a grassy area behind. In 50m walk through a wooden kissing gate into a large meadow and veer slightly to the right towards the river (35°). In 210m leave the meadow (Maggots Moor) and Flitwick Moor Nature Reserve in the far-right corner through a wooden kissing gate past an information board to cross The Flit on a two-railed concrete bridge and continue along a gravel path curving to the right. In 90m walk through a wooden kissing gate to the left of a wooden field gate and turn left at a junction with a gravel lane, in 30m passing an info panel on The Flit Valley Walk. In 50m, where the gravel bridleway turns left, [!] you fork right with a footpath marker post across a brook and through a wooden kissing gate frame into a field. Cross the field on a usually well-cleared path (40°) and in 120m leave it on the opposite side by a footpath marker post to continue along a narrow fenced path with trees on the right.

In 260m turn right over an two-railed wooden plank bridge over a ditch and through a metal kissing gate into a pasture. Turn left along the hedge towards the houses of Flitton, broadly in the same direction as before. In 90m leave the field through a metal kissing gate to continue along a path between a hedge on the left and a fence on the right. In 175m emerge through a wooden gate onto a road (Brook Lane) opposite St. John the Baptist Church, Flitton. Turn right, pass The White Hart, Flitton on the right and in 30m turn left at a T-junction along High Street, passing the church entrance as well as the De Grey Mausoleum. In 250m ignore Flitton Hill turning left and continue along the right-hand pavement of the road (now called Wardhedges Road) up into Wardhedges hamlet. The pavement changes side once more and in 530m you pass The Jolly Coopers pub and turn left at a T-junction with Silsoe Road.

In 50m, by a road crossing on the right, you have a choice:

For a Shortcut, continue ahead and pick up the directions at the end of this text under Shortcut.

For the main walk, turn right to cross the road and walk through a hedge gap with a footpath signpost into a large field, which you cross on a gravel-and-earth path (115°). In 200m on the opposite side of the field continue in the same direction along a car wide track, soon with a hedge on the left. Here you get views ahead to Silsoe village and to the right of the village to the easterly end of The Chilterns Range. In 750m pass a horse-compatible metal field gate. In 50m continue along a tarmac lane, ignore all ways off and in 450m cross the High Street, with St. James the Great, Silsoe church opposite to the right and The Star and Garter a little further along. Continue under a line of trees along the grassy pavement of Park Avenue with a bridleway signpost (Gravenhurst 1½). In 150m walk between two gate houses and through a large gate into the grounds of Wrest Park and Gardens towards a long tree lined avenue. Ignore a Public Bridleway turning right immediately, but continue along the grassy pavement and in 60m over a road bridge to cross the A6, which runs in a cutting here.

Continue in the same direction, but to the right of the right line of trees, providing you with views of Wrest House and of the wall running around the extensive grounds of Wrest Park Gardens, both Grade I-listed in their own right. In 350m you cross a tarmac lane and in another 50m a second one. In 120m follow a path into bushes and in 35m emerge on a tarmac lane in front of the entrance to Wrest House. Follow the curved lane past the house and in 100m follow a narrow tarmac path through hedges, in 15m continuing along the tarmac path past a car park serving Wrest Park Enterprise Centre. [Note the Coffee Shop inside Capability House, the last building on the right (Mon-Fri, serving hot soups and small meals): through the revolving door, to the right of the reception and in 20m through a door on the right.] 90m after passing Capability House continue in the same direction along a car wide gravel lane at a three-way bridleway junction, where the tarmac road turns right.

The lane curves left in 400m, gently rises over a brow, and passes Gravenhurst Lodge. Once over another brow you get clear views to the easterly end of The Chilterns (Pegsdon Hills, SWC Walk Hitchin Circular). In 530m turn right along Clophill Road into Upper Gravenhurst, now with views of the church in Shillington, dubbed 'The Cathedral of the Chilterns' by John Betjeman. In 185m turn left along High Street. In 110m, just after passing the village hall on the left, followed by a footpath signpost, [!] turn left along a tarmac drive. Continue in the same direction (40°) for 210m, first past some houses, then along a grassy path between garden fences and later through a wooded area, then along a fenced path with a pasture on the left. Immediately after this [!] turn left with a footpath marker post, with a hedge on the left and a small paddock on the right (310°). In 15m ignore a footpath turning right and walk through a metal kissing gate into a large pasture.

Continue in the same direction along the left-hand boundary, with more paddocks on the right. In 130m the path veers right to pass to the right of some bushes into the narrowing end of the field. In 70m leave the field through a metal kissing gate and continue along the left-hand fenced grassy boundary of the next field. In 230m leave it in the far-left corner at a footpath marker post (ignore a permissive path turning right) and continue on a grassy path in the same direction between arable fields. In 200m cross a gravel lane in the direction of a footpath signpost into a large arable field and cross it along a usually well-cleared path in the previous direction (295°). From the brow of this field, you get views back to The Chilterns as well as ahead to the Greensand Ridge. In 300m enter the next field with a marker post through a hedge gap and veer left across it on a usually well-cleared path towards its far-left corner, just left of Cainhoe Manor Farm. In 370m enter a grassy area by a marker post and continue along its left-hand boundary hedge. In 40m you turn left through a hedge gap and turn right along Clophill Road (310°).

In 620m cross the A507 carefully at a T-junction and enter a large grassy field through a metal kissing gate with a footpath signpost. This is Castle Hill, site of the Norman motte-and-triple-bailey Cainhoe Castle, the remaining earthworks of which are still clearly visible to the right around a spur with sloping ground on all sides, most impressively though when leaving the field on the opposite side. Veer slightly to the left across this area (320°) and in 310m walk through a metal kissing gate into a large field. Veer right towards a fence corner and in 65m follow the fence line, with the field on the left and Clophill Lakes on the right (formerly quarries and a planned nature reserve). Follow the fence around to the right and after 550m in the far-right field corner turn right along a grassy track between trees (55°). In 110m turn left with a marker post and cross two arms of the Flit River over two-railed wooden bridges 40m apart. Continue on a narrow path and in 230m emerge onto a road through Clophill village.

Cross the road and continue along a residential road a little to the left (Townshott). In 110m turn right at a T-junction. In 50m follow a fence on the right along a grassy path with a footpath signpost where the tarmac lane turns left to houses. In 40m turn left and uphill at a junction with a gravel-and-earth track between trees. Ascend the Greensand Ridge along this track with a steep sided wood on the right. In 70m ignore a stepped path turning right into the wood. In 150m the path levels out and in a further 50m ignore a footpath turning off left through a metal kissing gate. Pass Clophill Eco Lodges on the left and the entrance to the churchyard and ruin of Old St. Mary's Church on the right, with several splendid info panels and a spiral staircase to the top of the tower providing commanding views to the east and south (ticketed access, with all proceeds going to the Eco Lodges Project).
