<td>This walk explores the two royal parks next to Hampton Court Palace, with the opportunity to spend time at the end in the palace grounds. After a short stretch past the palace on the Thames Path the walk enters Home Park, the local name for Hampton Court Park. It was originally enclosed as a hunting ground for Henry VIII and still contains a herd of fallow deer, but its appearance has changed significantly since Tudor times. The Long Water was added by Charles I and the three lime tree avenues by William III &amp; Mary II, completing its transformation into parkland typical of the 17th-C baroque period. The walk leaves Home Park at Kingston Gate and crosses the A308 to enter the larger Bushy Park. This too started as a royal hunting ground and has had a similar evolution into more formal parkland. Its many water features were the result of Charles I ordering the construction of the Longford River through the park to bring fresh water from the River Colne to Hampton Court Palace. In the 20th-C two attractive plantations were created along the course of the river and the walk goes through these Woodland Gardens to the recently-restored Water Gardens, another reminder of the park's baroque history. It then loops back through the centre of the park and goes along part of the mile-long Chestnut Avenue (with the iconic Diana Fountain as its centrepiece) to Hampton Court Gate, opposite the palace’s Lion Gates.</td>

The Water Gardens are closed on Mondays (except Bank Holidays, when they are closed on the Tuesday).
The final part of the walk is through the grounds of Hampton Court Palace. This was originally built for Cardinal Wolsey, but when he fell out of favour in 1529 it passed to Henry VIII and was enlarged into a royal palace. At the end of the 17th century it was again greatly extended by William & Mary, who grafted a completely new baroque palace onto the Tudor buildings as well as redesigning the surrounding parkland (but not perfectly: the king was fatally injured by a fall when his horse stumbled on an ant hill). Full-price admission to the palace buildings, maze and formal gardens is around £25 (2018) but there are usually 2-for-1 offers available; e.g. on the train companies’ Days Out Guide.

Although Historic Royal Palaces decided to end the free winter opening of the formal gardens in 2016, the ‘informal gardens’ to the north and west of the palace buildings are still freely open to the public.

Note that some of the parks and gardens along the route close around dusk.

Walk Options

When the RHS Flower Show is in Home Park you could travel to Hampton Wick station and do a Short Walk from there.

A glance at the map will suggest many short cuts which you could take in Bushy Park, most drastically by omitting the 4 km loop out to the Water Gardens.

Conversely, there are several ways of lengthening the walk slightly. In particular it is well worth exploring the many attractive little paths inside the Woodland Gardens rather than taking the straightforward route through them described (for simplicity) in the walk notes.

There are bus routes along the roads around Bushy Park (but none through it), so head for the nearest gate if you want to abandon the walk in the middle.

Transport

There is a half-hourly service between Waterloo and Hampton Court (in TfL Zone 6), taking 36 minutes. For the Short Walk, Hampton Wick (also Zone 6) is on the Kingston loop line with trains from Waterloo via both Wimbledon and Richmond.

If you want to arrive in style (if not speedily) there is a summer riverboat service from Westminster and Richmond to Hampton Court.

If driving, Hampton Court station car park costs £7.50 Mon–Fri, £7 Sat, £3.50 Sun & BH (2019). There is a small car park at the palace (£1.50/hr) and a larger one 500m away on Hampton Court Green (£1/hr).

Suggested Train

As there are several possible lunch and tea places (see below) you could start the walk at any convenient time. If you are planning to have lunch about halfway through the Main Walk at the café in the centre of Bushy Park, take the train nearest to 10:30 from Waterloo to Hampton Court. For other variations you could leave at least half an hour later.

Lunch

The most convenient place to stop for lunch is halfway round the walk at the Pheasantry café (020-8943 1347; open to 5pm winter, 6pm summer), just inside the entrance to the Woodland Gardens in the centre of Bushy Park. It is likely to be busy on fine days but you have two chances to stop there for refreshment as the walk loops back to it an hour or so later.

If you want a pub lunch you could stop earlier in Hampton Wick, after 4 km. The Old Kings Head just outside Kingston Gate has closed, but a short detour up the High Street would take you past the White Hart Hotel (020-8977 1786) at #1, the Swan (020-8977 2644) at #22 (Thai food Mon–Sat; no food Sun) and the Foresters Arms (020-8943 5379) at #45.

Tea

If you have had an early pub lunch you could break for tea when you pass the Pheasantry café (see above) for the second time. There are many places towards the end of the walk at Hampton Court, including the popular (but fairly expensive) Tiltyard café (020-3166 6971; open to 4.30pm) inside the palace grounds.
On the way to the station you pass some large pubs on the other side of the main road, while a detour into East Molesey will reveal a number of independent cafés and more pubs. There is also a Coffee Bay kiosk in the small station concourse.

Walk Options

M. Main Walk (12½ km)
   a. Short Walk, starting from Hampton Wick (9 km)

Walk Directions

If you are doing the Short Walk (from Hampton Wick), start at [10] in §B.
1. Go straight ahead out of Hampton Court station, following signs to the palace. Stay on the right-hand side of the main road as you cross Hampton Court Bridge. Opened in 1933, this is the fourth bridge over the River Thames at this site. Upstream is Molesey Lock.

2. On the other side of the bridge turn right onto Barge Walk, signposted as the Thames Path. You pass piers and mooring points on the river and Hampton Court Palace on the left, with the Tijou Screen in front of the Privy Garden. The elaborate wrought-iron screen was designed by Jean Tijou (a French Huguenot ironworker) for William III's Privy Garden in the 1690s. When the baroque style went out of fashion the garden had been allowed to revert to a semi-wild state but was restored to its original appearance in the 1990s.

3. At the end of the palace grounds the path splits into a cycle route and footpath (you can take either). In 400m go through Jubilee Gate in the park wall and then another gate into Hampton Court (or Home) Park.

4. Keep ahead on a grassy path, taking care as you cross a number of golf fairways. You go through one of the long avenues of mature lime trees radiating out from the palace, then pass the tree-lined Oak Pond on your right and Farm Cottages on your left. Continue up to the Long Water and turn right to walk alongside it, away from the palace. Two new avenues of lime trees were planted alongside the Long Water in 2004 to recreate its original appearance.

5. At the end of the Long Water turn left. Just after the start of an avenue of trees parallel to a tarmac lane on your right, bear left onto a track which leads to a surfaced lane in front of the Stud Nursery. This was built in the early 19thC when George IV used Home Park for breeding and training horses.

6. Follow the lane round to the right and back towards the avenue of trees for a short distance, then turn half-left onto a clear grassy path.

7. At the end of the final avenue of lime trees from the palace there are a number of path crossings; turn right at the second one.

8. Follow the grassy path up to the right-hand side of the long Hampton Wick Pond and continue alongside it. At the end keep ahead and leave the park through Kingston Gate, passing the (closed) Old Kings Head pub on your left.

9. Unless you want to investigate other pubs in Hampton Wick, cross the A308 carefully at the traffic lights and go up Church Grove to the pedestrian crossing by St John's church, where there is a gate in the park wall on the left.

   • To detour through Hampton Wick turn right onto the A308, go over the pedestrian crossing and keep left at the roundabout into its High Street. The White Hart Hotel is by the roundabout, the Swan on the right at the junction with Lower Teddington Road and the Foresters Arms at the junction with Park Road and St John's Road. Go to the end of St John's Road to rejoin the main route at [11].

10. Starting from Hampton Wick Station (+½ km)
   a. Turn left out of the station and go along the main road for 250m, crossing over at some point (there are pedestrian lights outside the station and also further on, by the Foresters pub).
   b. After passing the Foresters Arms turn sharp right into Park Road and then immediately left into St John's Road. At the far end go straight across Church Grove.

11. Go through Church Grove Gate in the park wall, with a LOOP waymarker. The London Outer Orbital Path runs for 240 km around the edge of outer London. The route through Bushy Park to the Water Gardens more or less follows this well-waymarked path.

12. Go along the tree-lined avenue and through another gate into Bushy Park. Keep ahead briefly on a surfaced path, then bear right onto a broad grassy track.

13. At the corner of a cricket pitch turn half-right onto the right-hand of two grassy paths and follow it towards the right-hand end of a wood 400m away.

14. At the edge of the wood bear left to come to a crossing point over a canal joining Leg-of-Mutton Pond (on your right) and the next pond, 200m further on. Go over the canal and turn left to walk alongside it.

15. At the end of the canal veer right and left to continue alongside Heron Pond, initially on a surfaced path and then on a potentially muddy path by the water's edge.

16. Follow the path round to the right to continue alongside the Model Boating Pond. At the end of this second pond keep ahead on a grassy path alongside a narrow water channel.

17. At the end of the channel turn half-left and make your way across the grass towards a cast-iron water pump and Chestnut Avenue, the main road through the park. The mile-long avenue was conceived by Sir Christopher Wren as a grand formal approach to Hampton Court Palace. It is flanked on both sides by a row of horse chestnuts and several rows of lime trees.

18. Go straight across the avenue and head for a pedestrian gate in the boundary fence around the Woodland Gardens, about 100m to the left of a vehicle entrance from the main road. This area was originally fenced off in 1823 to protect a new plantation of oak trees from the deer. The gardens were developed by the Park Superintendent in 1947, with informal clumps of rhododendrons and azaleas around a channel of the Longford River. They consist of two enclosures separated by a narrow strip of parkland, Ash Walk.

19. Go through the gate into the first enclosure, the Pheasantry Plantation. If you want to visit the Pheasantry café, bear right to cross the stream at Crocodile Bridge and follow the path up to the building.
   - If you are not visiting the café you could turn left instead of crossing the bridge, going directly onto the main path through the plantation.
20. Make your way to the main path through the Pheasantry Plantation, heading W. From the café the shortest route is to head SW towards some small ponds, where you can cross a stream at Duck Bridge and then turn right at a T-junction onto the main path.

21. Where the path splits into two you can take either route; there is also an earth path just off to the right, alongside Keeper's River. All routes lead to a wooden gate at the western end of the plantation.

22. Go out through this gate, straight across Ash Walk and through another gate into the second enclosure, the Waterhouse Plantation.

23. For the simplest route keep right at the first two path junctions to head roughly NW on the main path for 300m, then turn right at a T-junction to head N for 350m on a long straight path.
   a. For a more interesting route (using the map) you could detour off to the left and make your way around Fisher's Pond to the larger Waterhouse Pond (with a small brick building on its far side, the Water House). The Canadian Totem Pole is in a glade to the north of this pond. This was erected in 1992 to commemorate the country's links with Bushy Park. Upper Lodge was used as a convalescent hospital for Canadian troops in WWI.
   b. Paths zig-zagging W and N alongside the Longford River allow for further detours off the main path. 250m north of Waterhouse Pond there is a striking avenue of hornbeams connecting the two routes. The trees are a cultivar (fastigiata) with upward-pointing branches creating a ‘cathedral’ effect.

24. At its northern end leave the plantation through a wooden gate and turn right. Go out through another gate into the parkland and turn left onto a broad grassy path heading N, with a fence on your left.

25. In 550m, where the main path crosses a small stream and turns half-right, there is a narrow path off to the left leading to the Water Gardens.
   - To bypass these gardens (eg. on a day when they are closed) stay on the main path as it goes round to the right, then turn right again onto a surfaced path leading away from the gardens. In 100m turn right onto a surfaced lane and (for the simplest route) follow it for 800m to a seasonal car park. If you do this, resume the directions at [30].

26. For the main route, fork left to come to another surfaced path, which leads to a gate. Go through this into the Water Gardens. The Upper Lodge Water Gardens were created in 1710 by the Earl of Halifax, Ranger of Bushy Park, but gradually fell into disrepair and were virtually forgotten by the 20thC. After a long campaign and many years of detailed research they were eventually restored to their 18thC baroque style, reopening in 2009.

27. Keep to the left of the Lower Pool and go past the central Cascade to the far side of the Upper Pool, ignoring a bridge over the river leading to the Brewhouse (not open to the public).
28. Leave through a gate in the wooden fence and follow the path round to the right. In 125m turn right at a T- junction onto a surfaced lane, soon passing Upper Lodge on the right.
The present house dates from the 1840s; earlier buildings on the site were used as the Ranger’s official residence. It was used as a wartime hospital in WWI and became part of Camp Griffiss in WWII, an important base for the US forces. The house is now part of the Crown Estate and privately occupied.

29. After it curves right to head S, the simplest route is to follow the lane (which becomes Cobbler’s Walk) through the park for 1 km, gradually curving left and eventually coming to a seasonal car park on the right.

   a. Alternatively (again using the map) you could bear left off the lane onto a faint grassy path, which in 150m goes past the right-hand end of the tree-lined Canal Plantation; the white buildings beyond it are part of the National Physical Laboratory (NPL).
   The NPL is the national measurement standards laboratory for the UK. The new buildings were constructed between 1998 and 2007.

   b. You can continue on more grassy paths roughly parallel to the lane, off to the right. You would pass to the right of a house (Barton’s Cottage) after 300m and later bear right in front of a wood to rejoin Cobbler’s Walk by the car park.

30. Take the broad grassy path heading SSE from the far end of the car park, passing to the left of an isolated oak tree in the parkland.
The large house which comes into view behind you is Bushy House (originally Lower Lodge). This former hunting lodge became the original site of the NPL in 1900 and is still part of the organisation.

31. In 300m go through a gate in the wooden fence to return to the Pheasantry Plantation. Inside the gardens the left-hand path leads past Mediterranean Mound to the Pheasantry café.
   - If you are not visiting the café you could take the other path up to the ponds and across Duck Bridge, then turn left at the T-junction to reach the gate by Crocodile Bridge.

D. The Plantation to Hampton Court Station (2½ km)

32. From the café take the path heading SE to Crocodile Bridge and leave the enclosure through the gate by which you entered on the outward leg.

33. Immediately after the surfaced path turns left just outside the gate, turn right onto a path heading towards the central pond on Chestnut Avenue, 400m away.

34. In 200m bear right off the main path (which turns left) onto a broad grassy path. In a further 200m this goes up a small bank where the River Longford flows into a culvert.
35. Go back towards Chestnut Avenue, perhaps crossing the road into the basin for a closer view of the Diana Fountain.

  The Royal Parks controversially maintain that the bronze statue (gilded in its 2009 restoration) actually represents the nymph Arethusa rather than the Roman goddess of hunting. It was commissioned by Charles I from Le Sueur in 1637 and originally stood at Somerset House. It was later moved to the Privy Garden at Hampton Court before being installed as the centrepiece of Wren’s grand Chestnut Avenue in 1713.

36. Head S down Chestnut Avenue, crossing over the road at some point to go down its left-hand side.

37. Leave the park through Hampton Court Gate and cross the busy A308 at the pedestrian crossing on the left. Go through the imposing Lion Gates into the grounds of Hampton Court Palace.

  The Portland stone piers and wrought-iron gates were designed by Wren in the reign of Queen Anne and her successor, George I.

38. Start by forking right inside the Wilderness, alongside the hedge maze. At the first path junction the entrance to the Maze is on your right.

  The Wilderness was designed as a place for courtiers to wander along winding paths, not unlike the now-famous Maze which was constructed for William III in 1690.

39. Take any route through the Wilderness to the far right-hand corner. Go through an opening in the brick wall into the Tiltyard and turn right for the Tiltyard café.

  As the name indicates this area was used for jousting in Tudor times; above the café is the one surviving brick tower used by spectators. William III later divided the Tiltyard into the Kitchen Garden, Rose Garden, etc.

40. Make your way from the café to the corner of the enclosure diagonally opposite, where there are exits into the Rose Garden and the recently recreated Kitchen Garden.

  The latter has been planted with vegetables, fruit and flowers typical of an 18thC kitchen garden.

41. Make your way out through the Rose Garden into the main forecourt. Ahead on your left is the great Gatehouse into the Tudor palace, its entrance flanked by the King’s Beasts.

  These ten statues of heraldic animals (lions, dragons, unicorns, etc) represent the ancestry of Henry VIII and his third wife, Jane Seymour.

42. Leave the palace grounds by the main Trophy Gate (or one of the side entrances onto Barge Walk) to come out onto the A309. Go across Hampton Court Bridge to the station.

  There are some large pubs directly opposite the palace entrance, and more pubs and coffee shops across the bridge in East Molesey. There is also a refreshment kiosk inside the station.
