Features Rhossili is a truly stunning beach, regularly on best in the world lists

This easy walk starts in Rhosilli, a small village at the south west end of the Gower Peninsular, and climbs Rhossili Down (a treeless hill) behind the beach for a ridge walk parallel to, but above, the beach to Llangennith (pub). The route back is along the beach itself.

Tea is on the terrace of a pub with a truly stunning view.

Lunch and Tea Pub in Llangennith and Rhossili (Worms's Head Hotel, OK food, stunning view from the terrace)

Rhossili Rhossili is a small village in a superb location at the southern end of Rhossili beach - the beach is regularly on 'best in the world' lists. Behind the beach is a down (grassy hill). Beyond the village is a headland and the Worms Head islands.

Eat: The Worms Head Hotel, thewormshead.co.uk - OK bar food, £4 pints, has a terrace with an absolutely stunning view of the bay. Probably the best view of any pub in the country! There's a tea room next door.

By Bus: Year round bus from Swansea. Buy a bus pass. About 1 hour. Every 1 to 2 hours. Check the times before travelling, especially off season.

By Car: SA3 1PP, about 45 mins from Swansea. In 2015, the National Trust brought the village car park for £3 million, raised the fee to £4 (free to members, £2 for 1 hour), and made the charges year round. There's free parking for a few cars by the church, or on the road in to town.

Stay: There are several B&B's in Rhossili, and holiday rentals, besides the Worms Head Hotel. The nearest youth hostel is Port Eynon

Gower Walks

Clockwise from Swansea - Gower's beaches are exceptional - there really are this many 5 star walk here!

If you want to do the Gower Coast Path

- Swansea town centre along the promenade to Mumbles is easy enough.
- Then Mumbles to Three Cliffs and Three Cliffs to Oxwich can be done in 1 go.
- Next you can combine (Oxwich Bay to) Port Eynon to Rhossili with Rhossili via Llangennith Circular (but finish in Llangennith. There are rare Oxwich - Llangennith buses.
- Then choose the Llanmadoc to Llangennith option of the Llanmadoc via Whiteford Sands Circular
- Finally, Llanmadoc to Gowerton

Get There

The nearest train station is Swansea.

London Paddington to Swansea : 3 hours, £80 off peak return. 'Advance' tickets (no changes) from £20 single. A good compromise is "Advance" out, and an (Open) "Single" back - about £60.

London Waterloo via Salisbury and Bath - £60 off peak return. Much longer. Cheap advance tickets on the few direct trains per day.

Megabus (London to Swansea from £6 single) coach and National Express coach is another option.

Driving to Swansea takes about 3 hours from London. The Seven bridge costs £6.60 to Wales only (free coming back). Its not worth driving around via Gloucester, even if going to the Brecon Beacons. Its a lot longer, and with the extra fuel, you wont save much

Buses You must check the bus times beforehand - using traveline.cymru/ Why? Because times and routes vary on school days, not school days, weekdays, Saturday, Sunday, summer, winter... It might be efficient, but its confounding for visitors.

Updated Summer 2016

Swansea bus station is about 15 mins walk from the train station. From there, 2 companies run buses to Gower, with a bizarre obfuscated schedule.

There is a 'Go Gower' day pass for £5.40, valid on both companies.

Notes. The Mumbbles official name is Oystermouth, they are the same place. Swansea, Black Pill and Mumbbles are on Swansea Bay.

Current routes are

#2 / 2B / #2C	Swansea - Black Pill (bay) - Mumbles (bay) - Rotherlade (beach) - #2C continues to Caswell (beach)	~ 30 mins
#14 / #114	Swansea - Black Pill (bay) - Southgate (for 3 Cliffs Beach)	~ 30 mins
#117 / #118 (Mon- Sat)	South Gower : Swansea - Killay (for disused railway line) - Parkmill (1km inland from 3 Cliffs beach) - (#117 via Oxwich beach) - Port Eynon (beach) - Rhosilli (south end of the beach)	~ 60 mins
#114 (Sunday)	South Gower : Swansea - Black Pill (bay) - Southgate (for 3 Cliffs Beach) - Parkmill (1km inland from 3 Cliffs beach) - Oxwich (beach) - Port Eynon (beach) - Rhosilli (south end of the beach)	~ 60 mins
#116	North Gower : Swansea - (sometimes via Llanmadoc for Whitford Sands) - Llangennith (north end of Rhosilli beach)	~ 60 mins
#115	Llangennith (north end of Rhossili beach) - Port Eynon (beach)	i.e. not to/from Swansea

- On Sunday, the South Gower bus takes a better route via Black Pill (close to Mumbles) and Southgate (Three Cliffs). Apart from that, the routes don't overlap, so its great for 1 way walks, and to/from Swansea, but bad for to/from Mumbles, and long south coast walks.

- On Mon-Sat, you sometimes have to change bus to/from Oxwich via a timetabled connection.

Stay Swansea is the best place for public transport users. The city doesn't have many tourist sites except for Wind Street (pronounced Wine Street, loads of mega pubs) and the marina. Many old seafront B&B's, and mega chain hotels.

Mumbles (Oystermouth) is a pretty seaside village, quieter and more upmarket nowadays as the 'Mumbles mile' pubs are no more. Old B&Bs and boutique hotels. Swansea's 'latin' quarter.

There is a Youth Hostel in Port Eynon, and a large beach campsite on Rhosilli beach near Llangennith. Also campsites at Three Cliffs. Rhosilli itself would be a great place to stay.

Warning The Severn Estuary has the second highest tidal range in the world (after the Bay of Fundy), with typically, a 30 foot (10 metre) difference between high and low tide.

If you walk along the beach beneath high cliffs, or far out on the sands, be aware of that you can be cut off by a rising tide!
